

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method and apparatus is provided for use in power amplifiers for reducing the peak voltage that transistors are subjected to. A power amplifier is provided with first and second switching devices and an inductor connected between the switching devices. 5 The switching devices are driven such that the switching devices are turned on and off during the same time intervals.